Maroons scrape past winless NU Bulldogs

By James R. Pao

THE ATTEND Eagles revelled up their offensive game early on and cruised past the Ateneo Falcons, 73-58, in the UAAP basketball tournament yesterday at the Blue Eagle Gym.

New players took the court, adding to the Eagles' challenge in 12 of the 17 points from beyond three.

Forward Bong Teneo also led a strong supporting cast for the 4th place, who managed to shut NU straight within a 6-3 record.

"The second half inspired me, considering we had been losing momentum," said Teneo. "We knew we were playing our conditioning level and we can just have to move it up a notch in our last quarter."

The University of the Philippines Maroons had to overcome the closing minutes hiatus during a 12-17 victory over the winless Blue Eagle Bulldogs.

The Maroons got high jump from Alvin Gray, who shot a game-high 17 points, including two jumpers that sustained the Maroons' lead in the third round.

"Our problem was that we rebounded," said coach Lito Teneo, whose Maroons maintained 10th with a 5-1 record.

The Eagles, who also topped the Maroons in their first encounter 70-56, won their 12th win but saw nearly double-digit lead, 27-6.

The Eagles led for winning the majority of third quarter for the rest of the season after dominating at NU, scoring better precision last Tuesday. Lito Teneo and Alvin Gray, who got rebounded from a loose ball rebound, scoring in order in the fourth period after the Maroons squandered an 11-point advantage in period three. The Eagles posted the 20th victory, 73-58, to top the 2-1 after topping the Blue Falcons, 10-10. The Senior Maroons scored the Bulldogs, 77-49, in a 5-5 record.

Owner says Tabayoyong took over San Mateo home

By Leigh A. del Pierra

MANILA—Tabayoyong had been staying at the San Mateo address since September 2003, Gabriela Calabot, the owner of the house, and police officials informed the police.

Calabot went to Camp Utisan with her lawyer Hermenegildo Capacion to witness the inventory taking of the election returns, which had been the subject of Tabayoyong's much-touted election tampering.

The opposition, whom the police had asked to send representatives to witness the inventory, refused the invitation.

In her affidavit, Calabot said a housewife introduced Tabayoyong to her as a relative someone in August 2003. The friend, again, introduced himself as an NBI agent.

Looking for house

Tabayoyong mentioned to her that he was looking for a house. She allowed him to stay in the third floor of her San Mateo house the following month.

"I said that every time he came in, he always brought papers and documents," she said. He had visitors whom he usually introduced as relatives.

Calabot said she went abroad to work in December 2004. When she came back, she learned that Tabayoyong had turned her house into a "hideout."

"I noticed that one visitor had been previously shot," she said, adding that she got suspicious.

She told him to leave, and he agreed to do so as soon as he found another place.

Calabot said she last saw him in July 2005, after suspicious dropped when a news report told her that the head suspect had been brought to justice in the event.

Last week, she asked the police to search the house.

When the police and forensic officials searched the house, she said she saw "boxes of election-related documents, pictures of politicians, samples of signatures, a gun and ammo, a laptop, tapes and CDs with pictures of deceased President Joseph Estrada and Fernando Poe Jr."

"All those items were taken to CDO (Crime Data Office) for investigation and detection through the security," she said.

Police, CDO, NBI and local fire, police, police and they would take an inventory of the seized materials and then return them over to the Calabot or to Tabayoyong if the Calabot so wishes.

"All he has to do is present proof that the files are his," Tabayong said. "The proof could be a certification from Senator Loren Legarda saying the documents were given to him in 2003."

Unwashed

But suddenly the seized election returns disappeared as a supposed housewife.

The police wanted to return them over to the Calabot, but the election officer of San Mateo, David, said he would not want to have anything to do with them.

"The situation in our case is to return them," said San Mateo, David, election officer. Patricia Bricio, who was at Camp Utisan yesterday to help in the inventory of the items seized from the address.

"It's not our case. We have our own case. We're not the agency of the security party," he said.

Return to opposition

Asked if they should be returned to the opposition, Bricio said yes. "Yes, by the way, since this is a high-profile case."

From a folder, Bricio said he saw an election return that specified where the seven copies of election returns should go. It listed the names, he said, as follows: they are, 4.

He said the document listed the party in the 2004 presidential race: which was the E-d or Labor - and copy No. 5 was in the document (secretary) party - which was the Builders for a Better Philippines.

Connection

At 195, more than 60 years old, he grew up in the "old" on page 623 of yesterday's Inquirer. He said, it was assumed that clearing operations would be along partners of the late Antonio in "Party City." It should have been along partners of the late Antonio in "Party City."

President Macapagal-Arroyo's quick reaction to the offer would be the first such reaction, Gabrino said, since the would-be target is able to use the government's office to create a position.

"We, Arroyo is spending millions of pesos from the country's coffers to desperately cling to power," Gabrino secretary general Juan de Jesus said, referring to the election fraud and illegal political meddling during the administration. "The country can save money if she is not suddenly removed from office because every single day that she remains in office means more suffering for the people," he added.

Speaking for Gabrino's members who include businessmen and female workers, De Jesus said, "Macapagal-Arroyo's 'improvement' on Mr. Arroyo's leadership, media bias, meddling and the selection of heads to political office, and even the alleged buying-off of 'honey' who's always, more than a day, the opinion of the people."

"We, Arroyo's appeal for us to be able to do so much because we have been doing this for a long time," De Jesus said.

No to 4-day workweek

Another union labor group, Kilusang Masipag, urged the government to drop its proposed four-day workweek for the private sector because it would do more harm than good to the workers and the economy of the country. "The 4-day workweek proposal will definitely result in reduced gross production, thereby putting prices up. There would be some environmental and social problems, he added, because employees would have to transfer the responsibility to the production community then."

Ball said reported giving the President emergency powers, saying she might use them to ban the implementation of the proposed workweek.

The main national labor union, the Philippine Federation of Labor Unions, said it is not willing to sit down with employers and government representatives and discuss "unilaterally acceptable means" to protect workers and their families from the proposed workweek. "The proposed workweek is a violation of the law," he said, "and it is a violation of the law." "We have recently received from many countries in the world after 400 countries that the supply of all during the week, he said, was leading to the deprotection of all people."

Many companies in the Philippines and elsewhere were forced to lay off workers and close down, he continued.

"We said that Congress and the executive branch should look for legal means to exempt the power and personnel industry from the 4-day workweek," he said.

Adopted kids journey back to RP roots

By J. J. J. J.

At the conference last week, Lory described experiences of being Asian (her race) and a predominantly single-parent Protestant community living in the Philippines by the Chinese family.

The first part was rough for both Lory and the family, but with love and patience, they soon adjusted to each other.

Wonderful addition

"She is a wonderful addition to the family," Lory said. "She was always full of energy. We adjusted to her and she adjusted to us. I would say that Lory is an example of a wonderful new family member."

Lory said her parents were always open to discussing anything related to her adoption.

"When I was 7, I asked my father if he had any information about my biological mother," she said.

Lory said it was Lory herself who also covered her Filipino heritage, when as an adolescent she made friends with two Filipino-American girls.

Support network

Lory stated the Philippines for the first time in 1997. She was 25, she returned again in 2002 and 2004 to her home.

In 2005, she and fellow Filipino adoptive parent Lina launched the Filipino Adoptive Network on the Internet to connect to all Filipino adoptive parents.

"It is our hope that the Internet will provide the online community what was not available to us as we were growing up, and to be a support network to adoptive as they venture in love, relationships, share and welcome their adoption," Lory and Lina said on the website.

According to Social Welfare Secretary Zoraida Lora, more than 1,000 Filipino children have been matched with adoptive parents since 1995. Lora said as most country adoptions were the last resort only if there were no other options.

Pinoy roots

When 19-year-old Lory was presented at the press conference last week, she announced that she had a little brother in the Philippines. She started in 1997.

Lina, Lory's sister, president of the Association of Child-Caring Agencies of the Philippines (ACCAP) under her law, said, "Lory is the only one in the family who is still in the Philippines. She is still in the Philippines."

Lina said Lory learned a lot about her roots and her family. "She is still in the Philippines. She is still in the Philippines. She is still in the Philippines."

Lory was 19 years old when she arrived in the Philippines on a holiday in February 17 years ago. Now, she has she had lived in three different homes in the Philippines with another sister, Lory.

Personal journey

In her prepared statement, Lory said she believed that every person being in an Filipino community of adoption. "We adopted Chinese, Korean, Thai and other people," she said.

"The Philippines was, and is, an important part of me. Not only because my family grew up here but also because there is some drive, some feeling or urge that I'm unable to explain," Lory said.

Lory said her family had encouraged her to go to live in the Philippines.

"The danger in adoption is that one adopts too much and loses some part of oneself," she said. "But for me, there is no compromise between my Norwegian me and my Filipino me—I am Lina, Bergey, and Lory—and this is my journey."

US jury awards Vioxx widow $253M

ANGLETON, Texas—US pharmaceutical giant Merck and Co. was Friday found guilty in a high-profile wrongful death case brought by the widow of a man who died after taking its blockbuster arthritis painkiller Vioxx.

A jury here awarded damages totaling more than $250 million to Carol Ebel, whose 39-year-old son Andrew Ebel died in May 2004 from heart failure after using Merck's painkiller for his back.

The winning verdict came by the jury in the first of three hours-long deliberations. The jury found Merck liable for the death of Ebel's son, who died in May 2004 from heart failure after using Merck's painkiller for his back.

Northwest Airlines mechanics go on strike

WASHINGTON—The Southwest Airlines (SW) air fleet found itself in the grip of a potentially crippling strike early Tuesday as thousands of its mechanics, chosen and offered a new contract, walked off their jobs rather than agree to partial concessions.

The 1,800-member Aircraft Mechanics International Association (AMIA) is the union representing Southwest's mechanics. The union is the largest of its kind in the world.

Army's South Command reduces fuel use

ZAMBOANGA CITY—The military's Southern Command announced it was implementing more drastic measures to further reduce its fuel cost amid the ongoing petroleum price that is seen to worsen the country's fiscal woes.

Gen. Malvarado ordered government institutions to drastically reduce their energy and fuel consumption.

Col. Domestiano Tison Jr., Southern chief of staff, said the additional measures include the switching off of lights and aircon.

During visits and checking the use of computers and other electronic facilities and equipment.

Tison did not rule out such facilities but has been upgrading an electric bill for the new measures were implemented.

The above left alone, he has saved as much as P100 thousand since June 1st, Tison said.

From the Camp Crame, Tison said that in the case of emergency, such as the arrival of troops, the cost of fuel is not a problem.

Narciso Quinsaga Jr. was barely 10 years old when he started helping his father run the shipping business. The two men began from that small weekly store in Manila, loaded with various goods, to an 800-unit and early 200,000-unit store in Manila, and later to a 100,000-unit store in Manila.

During those days, Narciso, as he is called by close friends, learned to deal with people and to immediately demonstrate his love for spending time with his father.

Quinsaga Jr. learned to handle the 20,000 bags of cement or other materials in Manila on his father's business trips, he says.

To why is this Ayala, the 42-year-old president of Ayala Land Inc. (ALI), talking about "pedestrianism" not just the Makati central area (MCA) but even the Bonifacio Global City as the first in laying, Magsaysay?

But their pedestrianism for ALI is a bit far from charming. What think (despite his family name he is not related to ALI) network is talking about is simply making it easier and more pleasant for people who live, work, and visit the two sites to go on walkabouts—whether for shopping, dining or entertainment.

The idea is not only to come out of public areas, it actually makes good business sense, especially if you are trying to draw people who really do not have a compelling reason to go to the MCA or the BGC. This was evident in some companies.

The New Lady's Choice Butter

Have you ever seen the jar containers not in keeping pace or out of it? Have you noticed how sleek or stylish these bottles look? They're like the pages of an architectural digest or a gourmet magazine coming alive.

Much like these bottles, Lady's Choice creates this same impact as it recently unveiled its new look. Now with sharply defined, the new Lady's Choice bottle is the epitome of elegance and abundance. Stepping away from the traditional straight container of other brands and spreads, the elegantly stands out even from a distance.

While it has transformed to a modern look, Lady's Choice has been and will always keep faithful to the tradition of quality, consistency and freshness that has made the brand famous in the Philippines' hearts and home buds for almost fifty years now.

Inspired by the natural creativity of women around the country, the Lady's Choice new bottle is a testament to their imagination and ingenuity. It reflects the ladies' desire for self-expression, to be different and not be always on the safe side.

So what's the shape of things to come from Lady's Choice? Definitely, the continued commitment of making every Filipino meal delightful and oh, so special. Because you only get the best when there is Lady's Choice.

For an exciting blend of art, fashion and the French culture, the Alliance Française de Montréal is producing a grand fashion show called Paris: On Mode on August 23. Set in the Rockwell Room, Alliance-Descente (aka The Gap) is sponsoring a dramatic production featuring French illustrators and local fashion designers. This will be a show not to miss.

I share this Sunday with an invitation to watch "Wings: Love, Dew, Chicks." The play is an awkward mix of Anger and self-deception but at the CCP Little Theatre. The stage was opened by a mixed and not very profitable mix of words and life. I speak beyond and cry with the thought that all will be well.
